

This command is used to start a new repository.

git init

This command is used to connect your local repository to the remote server.

git remote add origin <URL>.git

This command adds a file to the staging area.

git add .

This command sets the author name and email address respectively to be used with your commits.

git config --global user.name "Your name"

git config --global user.email "Your email"

This command records or snapshots the file permanently in the version history.

git commit -m "first commit"

This command sends the committed changes of the main branch to your remote repository.

git push

or

git push origin main